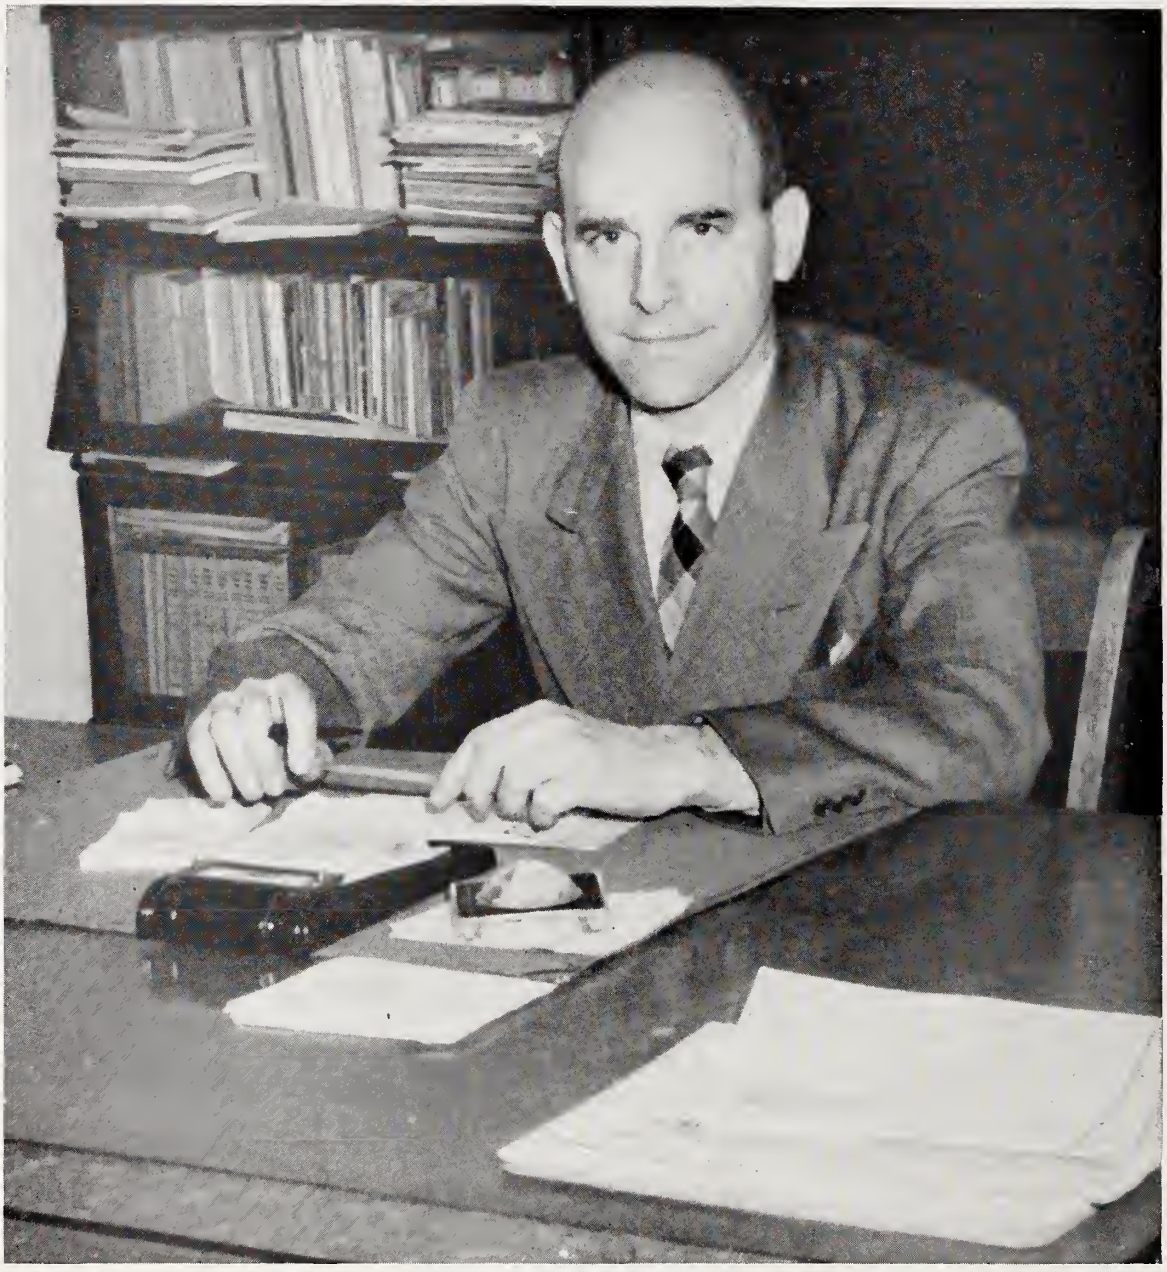
FOREWORD

Here is our annual! This is the first year Leaksville High School has ever published one of this size and quality. It attempts to present our life at school in a natural way, and it represents the best efforts and work of many students. But more than this, our new annual symbolizes a new spirit of progress alive in our school, a new feeling of pride in our hearts.

In giving our annual the name, THE WEAVER, it was our aim to suggest the idea of the weaving of the woof of our high school days into the warp of our lives. We have attempted to demonstrate this idea with the accompanying account of our thoughts and activities. THE WEAVER, however, is not merely a personification of the pattern of our school life pictured herein. The title of our annual, being suggestive of the main industry of our township, means to us a tie between our school and the community. We want our school to merit the pride of the community which the textile industry deservingly receives.

We express our most fervent hopes that THE WEAVER will mean as much to the rest of the school and to the community as it means to us—a pattern of our high school life to inspire pride in the past and progress in the formation of new patterns in the years ahead.



D. M. SNODDERLY

We, the members of the Class of 1947, appreciatively dedicate our annual to MR. SNODDERLY, under whose strong and admirable leadership our school has made such great progress during his first year as principal.

The desire and effort of the faculty and student government association of the Leaksville High School has materialized this year in the formation of an Honor Society which will, if our application is accepted, become a part of the National Honor Society which has branches in most of the large city high schools all over the nation.

This organization follows the suggested constitution in that, after the list of seniors and juniors making a scholarship average of ninety per cent or over had been compiled, the faculty chose fifteen per cent of the enrollment of the senior class and five per cent of the enrollment of the junior class—this selection was made on the basis of the students' standing in regard to character, leadership, and service.

This society, with the help of a faculty council, will work out plans to stimulate more ambition on the part of the student body for higher scholastic attainment, achieved without a self-centered attitude, thus promoting the idea of good citizenship which comes through a high sense of honor and the unselfishness of service.

BUS DRIVERS

Leaksville High School has six bus drivers, five seniors and one junior. Since this is their second year of service in this capacity the above six are especially well qualified to meet the great responsibilities of their position. The drivers have displayed their ability this year by making runs twice daily without undergoing any accident, in spite of fact that of the six buses only two are in good condition.

All of the bus drivers were put on the Student Council in order that they could better voice their views and problems. They have expressed their appreciation for the good job Mr. Snodderly has done in handling their individual problems and those involving other schools. All of the drivers have admitted that they do their job not primarily for the monetary reward but in the interest of service. The whole school is grateful to these six individuals for their valuable contributions and cooperative attitudes.

CLASS HISTORY

We, the senior class of 1947, entered Leaksville High School in the fall of 1943, wanting to call ourselves sophomores but knowing we were just beginning our high school life as lowly freshmen due to the added twelfth grade. Junior Edwards was our president, and, being green as freshmen are, about all I can say is . . . we survived!

In the tenth grade we elected Herman Harris as our class president. Our most important achievement that year was the production of a negro minstrel in which we had a large part, though it was actually presented by the boys' and girls' glee clubs under the direction of Miss Doris Marshall. This marked a beginning of an era of increased activity on the part of our class.

As eleventh graders we elected Alan Dunn as our class president. This was truly a prosperous and progressive year. We gained, among other assets, a new teacher, Mr. Snodderly. With his aid we established the school's first printed newspaper. It was a ten page edition issued five time during the year and edited by Phyllis Dyer and Billy Foley. The Student Council was reorganized and went into immediate action, under the presidency of Allan Griffiths. Two of its most important projects were the adopting of a school seal, designed by Norma Davis, and the purchasing of auditorium draperies. The latter made it possible for us to include movies among our activities. This year concluded with the production of the Glee Club operetta, leaving us with a feeling that we had truly accomplished a great deal.

We entered school in the fall of '46 as dignified seniors under the leadership of our new principal, Mr. Snodderly. Among the student leaders chosen from our class were Alan Dunn, president of the Student Council, and Edward Holmes, senior class president. Phyllis Dyer and Allan Griffiths won the academic honors at the end of the year as valedictorian and salutatorian, respectively. And, as evidence that our class has not only brains but beauty, Kitty Stevens was chosen Miss Leaksville High from among forty contestants representing all of the classes in our school's first beauty pageant.

Our daily schedule was arranged differently this year, making it possible to include many new activities, such as dramatics, public speaking, and physical education. These activities led to many unprecedented productions, in which we, the seniors, had an important part. Of greatest signifiance to all of us was the publishing once again of an annual, this year, with the aid of Miss Nancy Hodges as faculty adviser, one of unusually superior quality. H. D. Knight and Christine Strutton were elected editor and business manager respectively. The seniors also produced an original skit as a part of the first in a series of yearly school stunt nights. As this history is being written they are planning the production of a senior play.

Under this year's new schedule two additional subjects were included, Distributive Education and Music Appreciation. A beginning has also been made, through the securing of an instrumental instructor who comes from Greensboro once a week, toward the eventual establishment of a school orchestra. In the field of music our greatest achievement, one of the highlights of the year, was the purchasing of a grand piano for the school. This was accomplished through the efforts of the entire school under the direction of the Music Club, and with the aid of various community organizations.

Our standard class rings came toward the close of our last year at our beloved school. We wear them proudly in remembrance of the way we travelled during those short years and with assurance as we look toward the future.

A SENIOR'S PRAYER

Goodbye, beloved Alma Mater,
I leave you with regret today,
For my life is yet before me
And I must be on my way.

The great tomorrow is dawning,
The past will soon be far behind;
May the world find me willing
And success may I find.

God speed me in my journey
And guide me toward the right,
Let me never fade nor falter—
Keep me always in Thy sight.

There'll be times in my life
When things look gloomy for a while;
But help me to withstand all
And go on with a smile.

Whatever I may choose to do,
And where e'er I may be—
I'll try to do my very best
To bring glory unto Thee.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

We, the Seniors of Leaksville High School, having reached the age of discretion, do hereby make, declare, and publish this, our last Will and Testament.

Myrtle Beasley and Gordon Hundley will their quiet ways to Joan Roberts and Bobby Houchins.

Ada Coleman leaves her personality smile to Julia Faye Scott.

Dot Willis Hall wills her athletic prowess to Edwina Norman.

Bill Armfield leaves his way of "winning the game" in all athletics to the fellows on next year's teams.

Peg Sapp hopes her good friend, Hal Shinn, can capture her way to sight read all piano selections.

Bobby Carroll leaves his love and laughs with all the freshman, sophomore, and junior girls.

Herman Harris is hoping that a boy, whose name is Johnny Hall, can capture his good looks and curly hair.

Paul Chappell wishes that Tommy Jarrell might have all his hidden talents and desirable ways.

Douglas Ellington leaves his spiritual being with next year's French class, to haunt Miss French, natch.

Homer Hodges wills his dish-pan hands and pastry successes to none other than "Genius" Jones.

Kitty Stevens leaves her title, "Miss Leaksville High," for another beauty to win.

Faye Fulp leaves her fiery eyes to anyone who can most successfully use them as she has.

Bette Kendrick and Jackie Richardson wish that Patsy Nichols would see that '48's games are well guarded.

Patsy Ingram and Vilma Warf will their chummy ways and sweet personalities with Marie Vause and Margaret Dietz.

Barron Shaw leaves something, 'cause he always does.

Bobby Eggleston and Richard Via leave their hillbilly talent to any person who thinks he can equal them.

Betty Hicks hopes that Nancy Rothrock can find a way to get comfortable in all situations as she has.

Billy Foley, better known by his last name, leaves his extraordinary gift of gab with Faith Marie Earles.

Allan Griffiths wills his book knowledge to John Hancock, who can really use it.

Pete Warren sadly gives up his bus to Talmadge Harris, though he simply cannot bear to part with his white mule.

Reggie Nichols hopes that Garland Neal will always be sweet and gentle with Geraldine Martin.

Pat Reeser leaves her cheerful manner with Jill Hancock, who certainly does not need it.

Merle Howe and Vivian Thomas leave their giggles to the rest of the school to help boost its spirit.

Sherman Fisher and Bobbie Spencer will their way to avoid misunderstandings to Margaret Davis and "Bubble-eyes" Thompson.

Phyllis Dyer leaves her intellectuality with James Burgess.

Pete Bryant wills his flirtatious ways to Carlisle Campbell and Bobby Grogan.

Peggy Sutliff and Evelyn Elliot will their ability to harmonize with two able glee-clubbers.

Virginia Rickman leaves her cute, impressive personality with newcomer, Janet Bondurant.

Faye Sutliff leaves, with her blond hair.

Mickey Vestal and Richard Rickman leave with pleasure, period, and Mr. Snodderly would like to give them a kick-off.

Roy Meadows leaves his jugful of cactus juice with Miss Anderson so that she may lock it in the office for safe keeping.

Vivian Shively leaves her attractiveness to Dot Andrews, though she doesn't need it.

Frances Jarrett leaves her shyly sweet manner to Colleen Jones.

Steve Talbert leaves his good mind to Mrs. Dininny's up-coming geometry class.

Lynn Koontz wills his step-lively ways and jitterbugging good times to Richard Thomas.

Our heavyweight champs, William Glenos and Harold Redmon, leave all their excess to Tommy Fulcher.

Al Dunn leaves his influence to Shirley Hawkins.

All of the seniors leave the faculty and school with hearts full of gratitude and fondness.

In witness whereof, we hereunto set our hand and seal this first day of April in the year 1947

THE SENIORS

Signed, and acknowledged as our last Will and Testament in the presence of us who hereby sign the same in our presence and in the presence of each other, as attending witnesses.

CLASS PROPHECY

The fact that I was in geometry class where my mind usually starts to wander into dreamland is reason enough to call my little doze of mind somewhat of a seizure, because my imagination was but definitely working overtime. I, being a philosophy cluber, had been thinking strongly of an unusual composition for our class prophecy and, even though I find geometry interesting, I found my thoughts even more so.

The world was spinning and I was carried away into an entirely different world of modernisms. I discovered myself at the mouth of a huge river which was labeled "The River of Success . . . May 20, 1964." Since I firmly believe in signs and dreams, I have taken everything I observed in my adventurous dip into sub-consciousness as the truth. The river was cluttered with tiny boats which were filled with members of the class of 1947, my classmates, who were in a long procession celebrating their success. The waters had been exceedingly rough at times but it had not in any measure taxed the ability of my brave classmates.

Those people I saw braving the waters were:

Edward Holmes, who had become one of the world's noted psychiatrists, was now spending much of his time casting a hypnotic spell around the many beautiful women involved in his life.

Joy Wilson, who was an efficient private secretary, was now seeking an even higher position with the large firm, "Snazzlepoop's Heavenly Insurance Agency, Incorporated."

Barron Shaw, who had always liked the idea of finding out something new about Mother Nature, was considering deep sea fishing; possibly for whales even larger than Moby Dick.

Betty Moore and Alan Dunn were married and were the happy owners of a chain of grocery stores . . . and the parents of five freckled-faced children.

Phyllis Dyer and Billy Foley had made their debut at the "Met" and were married several days later, making their home in one of the opera-house balconies.

Virginia Rickman, a successful interior decorator in Hollywood, had spent a long while studying nutrition for the larger restaurants in California.

Douglas Ellington made a super electrical engineer and was actually shocked at times at his own originality for such work . . . and equally shocked that he had stayed a bachelor.

Norma Davis was a great artist who had made millions in her profession but still lacked a husband and still led the men a merry chase.

Pete Bryant, an outstanding coach at one of the larger colleges in the nation, taught kiddies to shoot marbles in their spare time.

Richard Via had taken Bill Stern's place on the air and had appeared in several movie shorts in answer to the great demand for his fine announcing.

Faye Fulp and Bill Armfield had been married several years, both being all-stars in the national basketball tournaments with their pictures appearing in the papers once a week.

Richard Rickman had discovered a way to sleep and work at the same time while his agents distributed pamphlets on "How to sleep your way through college and come out with a degree."

Kitty Stevens, having been employed to model sports and formal wear only two years after graduation in '47, as yet has been too busy to think about marriage.

H. D. Knight was the proud superintendent of the nation-wide Y. M. C. A. organizations and the loving husband of Dorothy Jones, who modeled daily for Pepsodent advertisements.

Armor Pyrtle, a most active senator from North Carolina, was noted for his orations delivered the first of every month. As yet, he had not found the right wife for himself.

Geraldine Chatham and Claudine Thornton fulfilled their engagements and had settled down to a quiet and happy married life.

Shirley Brown, Elnora Murray, and Mozelle Thornton were sophisticated spinsters and owners of a large ladies' lingerie shop that was known for its intricate needlework.

The Underwood brothers were truly excellent nutritionists and managers of at least a dozen farms, enabling them to sit back and relax in their easy chairs behind their twin mahogany desks. The Underwoods had just promoted Catherine Cooper from the role of chief chicken caller to that of foremost hog caller. Carolyn Weadon was Catherine's silent but firm moral support.

Betty Hicks and Dolly Carter were two lovely chorus girls at the Radio City Music Hall, sometimes making appearances at ritzy night clubs.

James Shropshire was a door-to-door salesman who in his spare time wrote poetry and novels which were usually about his traveling experiences. Nancy Roach was his leading rival in the field of poetry writing.

Among the celebrated authors of the day was another member of the class of '47—Robert Fulton, a brilliant novelist.

Gene Anderson, a famous orchestra conductor, had as his chief publicity agent his wife, Margaret Shough.

Lee Hilton, Billy Morris, and Bobby Talley had graduated into a higher bracket of bus driving, being efficient steerers of the Carolina Trailways. Thomas Eanes was their chief ticket collector.

William Glenos was a fine cook for a swanky New York restaurant, often preparing special dishes so as to impress the sophisticates and possibly to attract an especially beautiful lady with money.

Pete Warren had realized his ambition as the star first baseman for the New York Yankees and popular hero of all the fans who jammed the Yankee stadium.

Sherman Fisher, proprietor of Cliff's Diner and owner of numerous night clubs considered the best in the country, was a talent scout for his nightly floor shows. One of his greatest discoveries was the famed chorus girl, Vivian Thomas.

Merle Howe was married to a man much older than she and was extremely happy with her work as house wife and school marm at a local kindergarten.

Bobby Eggleston and Lynn Koontz were men of comfortable means, having made their fortune singing all over the world with a hillbilly madness.

Cornelia Jones and Malene Snow made wonderful librarians who, as they grew older, actually appeared younger. However, both seemed to have preferred to stay single.

Lucille Mabes married Roy Meadows . . . and the couple lived happily together with their eleven children on a ranch out west called "The Bar-Nothing-But-Meadows" Ranch.

Dan Hall was satisfied with his life's work as a farmer, father of six boys and husband of the sweet, intellectual student in our '47 class . . . Roberta Coon.

Bobby Frazier could never persuade Evelyn Elliot to marry him and she could never make up her mind as to the one thing she wanted most in life . . . so the couple stayed single and undecided.

Jackie Chandler, who had been married for some seventeen years, had been burdened with the hard work usually undertaken by a housewife to the extent that her false teeth and graying hair were her outstanding features.

Harold Redmon spent years experimenting in his research laboratory, but no more than he spent trying to persuade Faye Sutliff to marry him and become his private guinea pig.

Barbara Jean Spencer was a leading hair stylist who was engaged to a well-known play boy. Her assistant, Ada Coleman, who still maintained her sweet personality, had married a man some years younger than she.

Well . . . . my thoughts were interrupted when my geometry teacher gently pulled my ear and asked me to prove a theorem about parallelograms . . . . and instantly my outlook on life changed completely. However, this world of the future remained with me a few seconds longer . . . . long enough for me to realize that I am very fortunate in being a member of this senior class of 1947, with the opportunity of knowing and understanding each and every one of them as individuals. I now secretly pat myself on the back.

The Student Council, newly organized last year under the name of the Student Cooperative Association, endeavors to promote better understanding between the student body and the administration. The Association, composed of representatives from every class, is supposed to give an opportunity to the entire student body to express themselves on important issues and make decisions in regard to certain student rules. The entire Association meets every two weeks, but it has a standing committee which assembles during the intervening period.

One of the most important projects of the Student Cooperative Association last year was the purchasing of draperies for the auditorium. During the current year the Association has worked toward many different goals, and has in mind for the coming year numerous ambitions such as the establishing of a school orchestra.

The Student Cooperative Association has been fortunate in having able student leaders and faculty advisers.

The annual staff, under the splendid supervision of Miss Nancy Hodges, has produced for you this new and improved yearbook. Since this is the first book to be published in two years and the first of its kind and quality known to the students of this school, it has meant much extra work and serious thought on the part of the staff. We studied the process of printing and engraving at the "Journal-Sentinel" news office and the Piedmont Engraving Company in Winston-Salem in order to better ourselves for the job which lay before us. Even though most of the staff had previous experience in journalism, we could not have produced an annual of this quality without the aid and support of the school and the community.

If, in the future, turning the pages of this book brings back to you valuable and inspiring memories of friends and experiences of our high school days, then our efforts will have been duly rewarded.

"Dummy sheet—ad copy—deadline Monday—thirty-three letters to a line-thirty-five words to an inch—one inch one column." All these are familiar phrases to members of The Cub Reporter staff. Advertising campaigns—after school meetings—picnics and stunt night are connected with the good times we have had.

In the past two years we have worked hard, not just when we felt like it but every time the paper has gone to press. We have known disappointment and failure as well as joy in our work, but we feel that something worthwhile has been established in Leaksville High School.

During the past years the Leaksville High School has had two separate Glee Clubs, both boys and girls. This year, however, the two clubs have been combined and placed under the direction of Miss Betty Kirkpatrick.

The inherited purpose of the Glee Club is to teach its members to interpret choral music, to develop an appreciation of good music and sing with confidence and poise in public appearances. The Club has appeared in many of the community's churches and, with the help and cooperation of the Dramatic Club, they were enabled to present a Christmas Cantata.

The Glee Club has gained much applause from the public for its remarkable choral combination of mixed voices.

The Club's officers are as follows:

BOBBY CARROLL ---------- President
BETTY ELLINGTON ---------- Secretary
RUBY SMITH ---------- Librarian
LYNN KOONTZ ---------- Wardrobe Master
HAL SHINN, PEGGY SAPP ---------- Accompanists

History is being made in Leaksville High School through the development of many clubs, one of which is the Music Club. This organization was started through the love of, and genuine interest in, music which many students have shown through their participation and eagerness to learn more about music.

Although we have had a glee club in the past years, this is the first musical activity in which the students do the planning and performing themselves. Only those who can perform or add to the development through their knowledge of music may become members.

The main objective for the Club this year has been raising funds for a new piano for the school. Our hope is that the Club will continue to grow and become a great asset to the school and the community.

The officers of the club are:

HAL SHINN _____ Vice-President

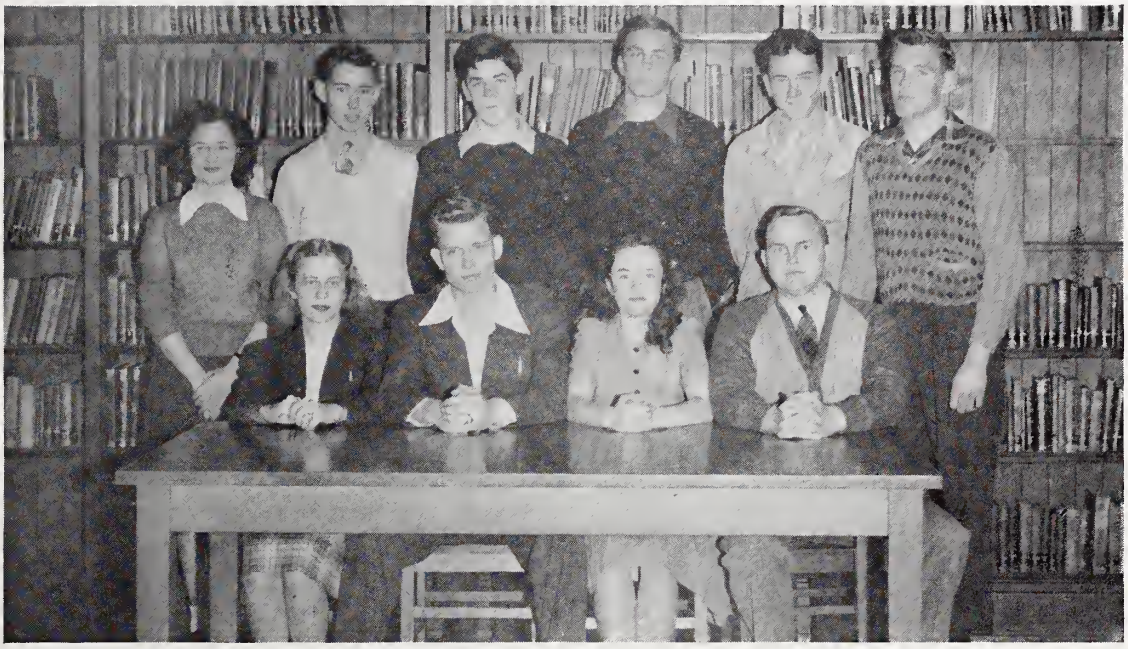
"THE LITTLE THEATRE"

Officers: ALAN DUNN, President; BARRON SHAW, Vice-President; ANN MARTIN, Secretary; BETTY GENTRY, Treasurer. MISS RUTH FERGUSON, Faculty Advisor.

The Dramatics Club, alias "The Little Theatre," is an interesting activity organized by students who are aiming to better the development of their personalities through self-expression and character portrayal. This year the Dramatics Club, under the directorship of Miss Ruth Ferguson, has initiated several unprecedented productions. Early in October we sponsored a "stunt night" performance in which every organized group of the school, including the faculty, participated. In December the Dramatics Club, in conjunction with the Glee Club, produced a Christmas cantata. Since that time some of our members have broadcast several programs from the local radio station.

We are looking forward to further stimulating activity, such as producing a senior play, during the remainder of the school year, for we have a large talented group and a capable faculty advisor.

PUBLIC SPEAKING GROUP



Seated: Shirley Hawkins, Secretary; Armor Pyrtle, President; Jill Hancock, Mr. Story.
Standing: Betty Baker, Melvin Kendrick, James Burgess, Barron Shaw, Harold Lambert, Alan Dunn.

Since there has never been a time when public speaking formed a more important factor in American life than it does today, the students of Leaksville High School were very fortunate in having offered to them this year a class in public speaking.

The purpose of this class is to aid the students in becoming a more effective part of the school and the community. Their training aims to enable them to lay before others, in language clear and forceful, their opinions on, and their judgments of, any question which may appear before the mind of the public.

Members of the public speaking class represented Leaksville High School in the state-wide oratorical contest on the topic: "Is world government the path to peace," and the state-wide debate on the query: "Resolved: that the federal government should provide a system of complete medical care to all citizens at public expense."

The class has experienced a successful year under the guidance of their two very capable advisers, Reverend Sherriell E. Story and Mrs. Klyce H. Chandler.

DISTRIBUTOR'S CLUB

1st Row: Paul Chappell, Fay Noles, Jennie Lou Saul, Secretary; Henry Stocks, Treasurer; Lynn Koontz, President; Louise Fulcher, Bobby Carroll.

3rd Row. Mickey Vestal, Ada Coleman, Dorothy Willis Hall, Jerlene Martin, Jacqueline Hunter Garland Neal, James Shropshire, Douglas Via.
Not Present: Margie Reynolds, Sherman Fisher.

The Distributor's Club, organized by members of the Distributive Education class, has both social and education aims. The meetings are comprised of lectures in the field of retailing enlivened occasionally by parties.

Members of the Club attended the State Distributor's Convention at Raleigh where they enjoyed meeting members of other clubs in North Carolina.

This is the first year of D. E. in Leaksville High School, but enthusiasm is not lacking among students or among the merchants of the community whose cooperation has been generously granted.

The Future Homemakers of America, composed of home economics students, is a national and state organization. The Leaksville High School Club has been in existence for several years and has recently been affiliated with the State chapter.

"Toward New Horizons," the motto of Future Homemakers, expresses the purpose of this organization—learning to live better today in order that our lives and those of our families may be better tomorrow. With Miss Mary Chilson as our faculty adviser, we feel that we have made progress toward the achievement of our goal.

The officers of our Club are:

ELANDA McCOLLUM ---------- President

The Tri-Hi-Y of Leaksville High School was organized by Miss Ruth McConnell in 1945. The Tri-Hi-Y is connected with the Y. M. C. A. and takes an active part in the life of this community. The slogan of this Club is: "To create, maintain, and extend throughout the home, school, and community high standards of Christian character."

Recently the Tri and Hi-Y Clubs have been having joint sessions in which movies and talks have been given on various subjects. The Clubs also have an active social life including parties, hayrides, and other forms of entertainment.

Every year the Tri-Hi-Y of Leaksville meets in a conference with other such clubs in the two Carolinas. Leaksville Township had the pleasure of having the conference meeting held here this year.

Not Present: Garland Neal, Douglas Via, and Mr. L. R. Evans, Adult Advisor.

The Leaksville High School has progressed a great deal toward the organization of its new and better clubs and it is proud of the fact that the Hi-Y Club takes such an active part within its walls of study. The Club is actually carried on in connection with the Township's Y. M. C. A., and it is registered with the State and National Y. M. C. A. organizations. The stated purpose of the Hi-Y is "To create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character."

During this year of '47 the Club's membership has increased somewhat since its organization only last year. The Club's officers are as follows:

CHEERLEADERS NOT SHOWN IN PHOTOGRAPH

Bette Kendrick, Charlotte Kendrick, Barbara Glasgow, Barbara Spencer and Margaret Talbert.

The cheerleaders of Leaksville High School have been more impressive at the many exciting football and basketball games during this year than ever before. They have given the school's spirit a boost by their hard work, consisting of decorating the goal posts, holding pep rallies, and, of course, cheering at the games. With the advice and help of Miss Nancy Hodges, the girls have shown that cheering can and should occupy a large part on the program of future activities of the school.

The Leaksville High Red Devils returned to the gridiron this year with a new full-time coach and a new spirit. The new coach, Raymond K. Rhodes, a former lieutenant in the Army, came to us on a leave of absence from the University of North Carolina, where he is getting his master's degree in physical education. At the beginning of the season, due to a late start in practicing, our team suffered a few losses, but, with more experience and good coaching, our losses soon turned to wins, and we ended the season with a pretty good record. In addition to displaying considerable playing skill, the team showed an excellent spirit throughout the year and a willingness to work in daily practices. Next year Leaksville High will be in the Northwestern Conference and play class "A" football. We are looking forward with enthusiasm to a good deal of hard work and improvement to prepare us for this strong opposition.

The boy's team brought great renown to the school this year through an unusual record of victories. Their most notable achievement was the winning of the Rockingham County Tournament for which they were awarded a trophy. The team attributes their success largely to the fact that they had a new and better coach and a group of players with considerable previous experience. The boys entered the following tournaments: Madison Invitational Tournament, Rockingham County Tournament, Winston-Salem Journal Sentinel Tournament.

When spring rolled around this year, the battle of the diamond again got under way. With the return of twelve lettermen and numerous substitutes, Leaksville High School has the possibility of having one of the best teams in the County. Raymond Rhodes, athletic director for the school, began drilling the boys in the early spring. The team has scheduled games in the Class "A" Conference, and, with the support and spirit of the students and faculty, they may even win top honors during the season.
